"The ability to speak with Chiefs from across the nation and discover that many of our struggles are similar. Then taking those problems and discussing proactive solutions to mitigate issues. Additionally, I took a lot of information from the vendor presentations and one on one meetings. I found it all very valuable"

"Sitting at a table with other chiefs and being able to discuss challenges and successes is one thing but sitting at a table with chiefs of departments with a similar makeup is a whole other level. I learned more about how to make things better in the first hour than I have in the past six months. The connections that I made in the first hour far exceeded my expectations."
